We presume that they in pursuit is not known. We presume that they did not, as they must have been in a very crippled condition after such a long and bloody fight.

On the whole, our opinion, from the lights before us, is that it was a victory a good deal like that of Fyrmus over the Romans at Ascalum, which caused that renowned warrior to exclaim, after it was gaired, that one more such would be his undoing. We have no doubt, when the whole truth comes to be known, that the lighting in this battle on the Confederate side was of the most desperate charneter, and that the heroism displayed in it by our officers and troops has not been surpassed in any conflict that has taken place since the war began. THE LATE GEN. ZOLLICOPPER.

From The Lynchburgh Forquian, Jan. 24.

The intelligence of the death of this noble and gallant man will be received everywhere in the South with regret. Gen. Zollicoffer was a native of North Carolina, but emigrated when a boy to the State of his adoption. Not only is the death of such state of his adoption. Not only is the death of such a man a serious loss to us at this time, but we fear that the engagement in which he net his end is the wost serious reverse that we have yet experienced.
